

This chart shows (headlined in red) hospitals that had more readmissions than would be expected for their patient population in 2008. The green-topped lists are those that had fewer than expected.

Hip replacement:

Hospitals that scored poorly

(higher-than-expected rate of readmissions):

- Dr. Phillips (Orlando)
- Florida Hospital Zephyrhills
- Hialeah Hospital
- Memorial Hospital Jacksonville
- Northwest Medical Center - Margate
- Palm Springs General (Hialeah)

Hospitals that scored well

(lower-than-expected rate of readmissions):

- Coral Springs Medical Center
- Good Samaritan Medical Center (West Palm Beach)
- Gulf Breeze Hospital
- Gulf Coast Hospital (Fort Myers)
- Halifax Health Medical Center (Daytona Beach)
- Holy Cross Hospital (Fort Lauderdale)
- Sacred Heart Hospital (Pensacola)
- Sarasota Memorial Hospital
- Tallahassee Memorial Hospital
- Tampa General
- Venice Regional Medical Center
- West Marion Community Hospital (Ocala)
- Winter Park Memorial

Knee replacement:

Hospitals that scored poorly

(higher-than-expected rate of readmissions):

- Baptist Medical Center (Jacksonville)
- Coral Gables Hospital
- Florida Medical Center (Lauderdale Lakes)
- Highlands Regional Medical Center (Sebring)
- Kendall Regional Medical Center
- Palm Springs General (Hialeah)
- Palmetto General (Hialeah)
- Parrish Medical Center (Titusville)
- St. Vincent's Medical Center (Jacksonville)
- Wuesthoff Medical Center (Melbourne)

Hospitals that scored well

(lower-than-expected rate of readmissions):

- Doctors Hospital (Sarasota)
- Florida Hospital Waterman
- Gulf Breeze Hospital
- Holy Cross Hospital (Fort Lauderdale)
- Largo Medical Center
- Osceola Regional Medical Center (Kissimmee)
- Sarasota Memorial Hospital
- South Lake Hospital (Clermont)
- Tampa General
- Marion Community Hospital (Ocala)